As a baptized Episcopal member, aspirant starts conversation with their parish (usually clergy, then parish committee), who will reflect and decide whether to recommend to Diocese. 2. If recommended to Diocese by parish, the aspirant's file is reviewed by the Bishop, who will interview aspirant after they are interviewed and recommended by a Commission on Ministry (or equivalent body). If approved to become a postulant, Bishop decides a training program in conversation with postulant. 3. In the course of formation, the postulant's file is reviewed again by the diocesan Commission on Ministry and the Bishop, who may approve progress from postulant to candidate for Holy Orders. This will typically happen between one and two years after admission as a postulant. 4. General Ordination Examinations are usually taken in last year of theological study. * See your Diocese’s overview of the discernment process (i.e., for New York, visit: https://www.diocesenyc.org/christian-life/ministry-office/discernment-for-ordination-as-a-priest/) and the Constitution & Canons for details.	Although required courses will vary by individual (as determined by Bishop), courses on Episcopal polity and canons are typically a minimum. Clinical Pastoral Education (CPE) is often required. It is also helpful to take classes on the Episcopal church history, liturgy, and in the following areas tested on the General Ordination Examination (GOE) (see http://www.episcopalgbec.org/): <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Scripture • Church History including the Ecumenical Movement • Christian Theology including Theology and Missiology • Christian Ethics and Moral Theology • Studies in Contemporary Society, including Racial and Minority Groups • Liturgics and Church Music • Theory and Practice of Ministry The Diocese will also require candidates to complete its own training program in anti-racism, prevention of sexual misconduct in ministry, and the disciplinary canons (‘Title IV’) of the Episcopal Church. * Ordination requirements vary by bishop and diocese (usually based on individual needs). One year at an Episcopal seminary (following Union) in not an uncommon requirement.
